

Top Hint

Psychometric Testing can be used to affirm character and aptitude of applicants

Psychometric Testing and Other Tests

Becoming more and more popular psychometric tests form part of the recruitment process and are used to affirm the character and aptitude of candidates are right for the vacancy. Psychometric tests can be purchased by a number of suppliers. However, there are some excellent free tests available. Call the about solutions recruitment team for more details of these free tests

Other Tests

There are a number of other tests available that can help assess potential candidates. With such a wide range of tests available including, ability, engagement, 360, sifting, aptitude, profiling and personality questionnaires. With a whole host of other different tests such as technical and skills tests it can seem daunting. It's advised to focus on a few key tests that will really help with your selection. Too many tests might put candidates off. For a range of free tests available call the about solutions recruitment team